Commenting on the results, Faisal Mansour Sarkhou, Chief Executive Officer, said, "These results reflect the conservative strategy that we implement when managing the Company's assets and the quality of our revenues, especially considering that the largest portion of the total revenues are from fees and commission income. Despite the uncertainty the economies are witnessing, high inflation and interest rate hikes from the central banks that impacted financial markets, our robust business model, diverse solutions, and the competitiveness of our product offerings managed to grow our fee and commission income, further strengthening our financial position."
